Review of the Proceedings of the Democratic Convention-The Colored Delegate Webster-His Nomination and his Speech.

He Offers the Party Some Wholesom and Timely Suggestions-Follow Lamar's Advice-" Deal Justly and Fairly By All Classes and Colors."

Discussion on the Adoption of the Platform - Singleton's Speech - Assurances of Support of the Ticket by Defeated Candidates-Closing Scenes.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Appeal. Jackson, Miss., August 2.—The State Democratic convention, the largest ever held in Mississippi, has concluded its work. In re-viewing the magnitude and character of this convention, its important objects and the cominations it made, as well as the resolutions and platform adopted, there are many things of no ordinary bearing to be recounted. A noticeable and novel feature of this Demoand Gaston's European hotel on South Court cratic convention was the large number of negro delegates appointed by the Democracy from the different counties of the State. In Grenada county, for instance, twenty-five colored men were elected as delegates. The colored delegates of course occupied seats among the white result in the convention, and were the white people in the convention, and were recognized in its deliberations and proceedrecognized in its deliberations and proceedings. This is the first, though it will not be the last, time in the history of Mississippi Democracy where colored men will be given representation. Perhaps this no longer doubted question of equal rights to all, irrespective of previous condition of race, color, servitude or birthplace, illustrated and proved as it has just been, when a usurped as it has just been, when a usurped Presidency of the nation might seem to give the Republican party additional pretences for deceiving the credulity of the negro, will serve to establish and perfect the precedent for the future in the Democratic part es of the southern States. Among the candidates for secretary of state was General Joseph R. Davis, a nephew of Ex-President Jefferson Davis, and a gallant commander in the Confederate army. Yet this gentleman, worthy as he is of the emoluments and honor of the office to which he aspired, and the duties of > which he would have discharged satisfactorily, did not receive one-half the votes as did John D. Webster, a colored citizen of Washington county, from which he was sent as a delegate to the Democratic convention. It is not to make, nor even arouse, any unpleasant comparison that these facts are written. The Democratic party in Mississippi, which honestly and consistently, and may be, as the nation should say, patriotically ignored, and by no means whatever recognized the right of his fraudulency, Hayes, in the platform of resolutions, to occupy his usurped office, did recognize the rights of negroes, and expressed its willingness to con-fer office upon them. This fact, as attested by the proceedings of the Democratic convention which has just adjourned, is an argu-ment more potent and a truth more undeniaor obscured by the deception of all the Re-publican orators in America. During the sitting of the convention to-day, Daniel E. county, made the following speech:

office to which he aspired, and the duties o

THE COLORED DELEGATE'S SPEECH. MR. CHAIRMAN—Before we go into nomination of secretary of state, I desire to make a motion. I beg of the convention not to be too technical, but bear with me for a few minutes, and I think I can explain my position satisfactorily. I believe I am the only colored delegate upon the floor, but I repre-sent thousands of colored Conservative voters in Mississippi. Sir, I move that we, the representatives of the Democratic-Conservatives of the State of Mississippi, in convention assembled, do nominate a colored man for a position upon the State Democratic-Conservative ticket. As the motion has been seconded, you will pardon me if I consume a few of our precious moments in support thereof. It s thrown in the face of colored men who vote the Conservative ticket by their friends and relatives, "that you have gone back upon us; you don't feel our interest, and are working against it." And, sir, they go further and say that "the colored men who vote the Conservative ticket do it knowing that the Conservatives care nothing for them." Now, gentlemen, when I go back to my county I want to go with a clear conscience, and tell them that I do feel their interest and have them that I do feel their interest and have proven it by advocating their cause in this convention. [Interruption]. You will hear me for my cause. [Cries of "Hear him!" "Go on!"] There are some things that should be done because they are right, and there are other things that should be done because they are things that should be done because they are expedient; but, gentlemen, this should be done because it is both right and expedient. It is right, because the colored voter was promised that if he would give his aid in ridpromised that if he would give his aid in ridding the State of the Radical pest, and by it lift from her neck the yoke of oppression, he should share the spoils of victory and prosperity. And, sirs, this promise must be fulfilled; for if it is not, then we deserve and will receive the same epithet that we have thrown in the face of the Radical party: "A party of broken promises." It is right, because the colored voters of Mississippi are in the majority, and of course should be represented in its capitol. It is right, because sented in its capitol. It is right, because when the State of Mississippi was heavily op-pressed by the iron heel of Radicalism, and here was no other help to which she dare appeal, the colored voters were appealed to, and enough thousands of them stepped man-fully forward to the ranks of conservatism to worth 35c a pair. Finest assortment of fans in the city at 35c on the $1. Parasols! Parasols! Parasols!!! at manufacturers' prices. Call and examine. Ask to be shown our new style duplex corset, at $1 50, the best fitting corset in the market, and worth $2:0 each. But we may think there is no danger of hav-ing an independent ticket in the field; yet we are aware that the Radicals have formally are aware that the Radicals have formally disbanded as a State party, and that they had some object in view when they did so. They evidently thought it policy. The Democratic party formally disbanded a few years ago, and we all see there was policy in it. Now, because the Radicals have disbanded, don't think them dead, for it is written on their tombstone "Not dead, but sleepeth." The head of Radicalism is crushed, and has been sent to Massachusetts for burial—the tail, like that of another poisonous reptile, they were not the most ignorant, but the most intelligent among them. In conclusion, look among the many thousand colored Conservatives; nominate one and elect him. Then you will show the colored voter that you intend to deal fair with him. Then you will have a just claim for his support; waive the individual interest of the welfare of the State, people and party. Mr. Chairman, and gentemen of the convention, I thank you for your kind indulgence. [Prolonged cheers.]

THE REMARKS OF THIS COLORED DELEGATE were listened to with marked attention, the speaker being frequently applauded. Judge Bell, of Kemper, a prominent Democrat, said he was willing to see any intelligent and worthy colored man nominated and elected.

were intened to with marked attention, the speaker being frequently applauded. Judge Bell, of Kemper, a prominent Democrat, said he was willing to see any intelligent and worthy colored man nominated and elected to office. He did not, however, think that the race-issue should be brought into the Democralic party. He did not think that any man should be chosen to an office simply because should be chosen to an office simply because he was white man, or because he was a black man. R. H. Allen, a member of the Democratic State executive committee, presented the name of Dan Johnson for secretary of state, but the latter declined, and said he state, but the latter declined, and said he had no individual or personal interest in addressing the committee as he had just done. He had been actuated in behalf of the interest of his race. At the conclusion of these remarks he presented the name of John D. Webster, colored, of Washington county, for secretary of state. After several ballots, and when Webster had received fifty or more votes he withdrew webster, colored, of washington county, for secretary of state. After several ballots, and when Webster had received fifty or more votes, he withdrew his name. In doing so he said it was a fact that there are two classes, the one white and the other black; the interests of Loth should he restered.

the other black; the interests of both should be protected. He would like to see a black man on the Democratic ticket, because it would refute the utterings of Morton, Blaine and others, that the Democratic party would not recognize the political rights of the negro. He would like to hurl this slander back into the teeth of these men. He said, moreover, that he was satisfied that the colored people would have had a member of their own race on the ticket if they had asked it in time. He was also satisfied that the white people of the south are the true friends of the negro, and will stand to him. He was satisnegro, and will stand to him. He was satis-fied with the large vote he had received, and, in his withdrawal, would leave the convenin his withdrawal, would leave the convention to nominate the best man.

John D. Webster is an intelligent negro, and is the present clerk of Washington county. He has been a member of the legislature, and is said to be one of the best clerks in Mississippi. Several years ago a negro with the same initials, John D. Worl 2, who was chancery court clerk of Washington county, committed suicide by jumping from a wharf boat into the Mississippi river. After asking a friend if he had ever seen a man commitsuicide, Worlds made the fatal plunge. But these facts are related by way of incident, for the present "John B." is too sensible to attempt such a death. ble to attempt such a death.

The speeches and requests of the two colored men, as well as the action of the conrention, need no further comment.

AS TO THE PLATFORM,

is thoroughly Democratic. One of its features relates to the maintenance and developtures relates to the maintenance and develop-ment of the common or public school system in Mississippi. This is an important subject, and appeals especially to the recognition and indorsement of the colored people. In pre-vious campaigns the alleged opposition of the Mississippi Democracy to a public school sys-tem was used as a weapon of power by the Mississippi Democracy to a public school system was used as a weapon of power by the Republicans. This feature of the platform is right in principle and sound in policy, for the State of Mississippi can benefit herself by improving the public school system. A feature of deep interest, especially to the river counties, is the resolution which relates to the improvement of the Mississippi levees by means of Federal aid. This subject of course commends itself to the earnest consideration commends itself to the earnest consideration of every man interested in the protection or reclamation of the bottom lands along the Mississippi river. A feature of collateral and of somewhat local interest is the resolution asking Federal aid for the Texas Pacific railroad. The special telegrams to the APPEAL show that General A. M. West, of Holly

Springs, opposed this resolution in the plat-form, at that Senator Lamar, of Oxford, fa-vored and urged its adoption, which was General West said he favored Federal aid or the construction of a southern Pacific rail-oad, but objected to the same being asked for the Texas Pacific, or any other incorporaors being named in the resolution. moved, as an amendment, that the words or name "Texas Pacific" be stricken out, and "a southern Pacific railroad" be substituted. Senator Lamar said that this resolution had been introduced by the committee without his knowledge, advice or suggestion. He dis-claimed the paternity of the resolution, but favored it; and remarked that both the Demo-cratic and Republican parties in congress had placed themselves on record as favoring the onstruction of a southern Pacific rai The name of the Texas Pacific, he said, was inserted in the resolution because this com-pany owns the franchises and right-of-way of the proposed road. At his request, General West withdrew his amendment, and the reso-

West withdrew his amendment, and the reso-lution was adopted.

As to the party features in the platform, the utter omission of Hayes's name and the adoption of Mr. Barry's resolution, depreca-ting any and all independent candidates and movements, a volume might be written; and this volume might startle the demagogue in the midst of his schemes, and arouse sug-gestions, which the true citizen and honest the midst of his schemes, and arouse suggestions which the true citizen and honest Democrat might ponder with benefit. Mr. Barry's resolution, embodying the disapproval of the convention and of the Democratic party in the platform, was appropriate and correct. At the present time the "independent movement" addresses itself to the worst elements in Mississippi, and would, if encouraged and supported, arouse all the brazen strength and villainous vice that dwell in strength and villainous vice that dwell is vicious minds. Truly can it be said that i

"In friendly leagues Patriotic natures, and the worst of slaves; Is served by rival advocates that come From regions opposite as heaven and hell."

And then there is the omission to play the part of the sycophant by indorsing the electoral commission and offering gratitude to Hayes. I heard from a reliable source that an effort would be made to influence the committee to adopt a resolution approving the and enough thousands of them stepped manfully forward to the ranks of conservatism to overcome a Radical majority of forty or fifty thousand, and gave us the State by the handsome majority of thirty thousand in 1875, and over sixty thousand in 1876. Is the laborer not worthy of his hire? It is right, because on account of the colored vote Mississippi has six votes in the house of congress, whereas she would have only three if it were not for them. I might enlarge upon reasons of why this measure is right, but it is useless. I know the convention readily agrees with me that it convention was too thoroughly in sympathy measure is right, but it is useless. I know the convention readily agrees with me that it is right and just. And, gentlemen, it is also expedient, for several reasons. Should this convention notiniate a white ticket, and should there be an independent ticket brought out, and that be mixed, then, sirs, as a natural consequence there will be a concentration of the white votes upon one side, and colored votes upon the other, which will inevitably bring trouble upon us; for as long as the white vote and colored vote are solid, one against the other, we may expect trouble. But we may think there is no danger of havsight of, whatever Hayes might do, and al-though the wound which this great wrong has inflicted might be healed, it could never be forgotten nor lost sight of, but it would rede front in manufactorie de production and feet de l'accordinate de l'acco main a scar upon his forehead as a solemn attestation of the infamy. This speech has in a short speech to the convention this morning; said that he would not yet discuss the questions which should enter into the approaching campaign. General Lowry, General Featherston and General Humphreys, who were candidates in the convention, gave assurance that they would support Governor Stone. The party throughout the State will give him a strong and united support. In every county the ticket will be kept before the people and advocated by eloquent speakers and sensible men. There will be no lack GOVERNOR STONE, ers and sensible men. There will be no lack of interest manifested for the triumphant election of the entire ticket. There will be harmony of feeling, unity of sentiment and concert of action among the Democracy throughout the entire State. GENERAL ROBERT LOWRY, who was Governor Stone's most formidable opponent in the convention, and made a stout race, informs me that he is satisfied with the nominations, and will do all in his power to secure the election of the ticket. To-night a delegation of gentlemen, who are To-night a delegation of gentlemen, who are personal friends of Governor Stone, visited General Lowry at his rooms in the Edwards house. General Lowry, generous and prompt as he ever is, expressed his willingness and readiness to advocate the ticket upon the stump whenever called upon. He is truly sincere in what he says regarding this matter, and in this he is joined by all of his friends. General Lowry has taken an active and untiring part in politics since the war, and has never missed an opportunity to advocate the cause of the Democracy. He made a good race against Governor Stone, made a good race against Governor Stone, and would have been nominated had it not been for combinations formed by Humphreys men with the north Mississippi delegations. Indiscreet friends of General Lowry and General Humphreys created unpleasant feelings among themselves, although General Hum phreys and General Lowry are per-sonal friends. The former's friends would not and did not vote for the latter gentleman. In fact, General Lowry's defeat was due to the more ardent supporters of General Humphreys. General Lowry, how ever, will have other opportunities to combefore the people, whose good he has served with unquestionable ability and untiring en-ergy in every campaign since the war. He, with all other Democrats throughout the State, will be faithful in securing the election of the present ticket. At this writing (one o'clock Fiday morning) a brass-band is at the Edwards house sere-nading the nominees and defeated candidates. The serenade is tendered by Colonel Jones Hamilton, who was defeated for the nomination of auditor. This generous display of a desire to make everybody feel good, whether nominated or not, but evidences the excellent heart and kind feelings of Colonel Jones. In response to repeated calls, General Lowry made a short address from the stairway in the Edwards house. He restated the assur ances of his adhesion and support of the ticket as above given. Card from Mr. Morris. VICESBURG, MISS., August 2, 1877.

EDITORS APPEAL - Your correspondent from Jackson misquotes me—unintentionally, am certain-in his report of a brief con versation with me at the Edwards house, on versation with me at the Edwards house, on the evening of the twenty-ninth instant. For example, I could not have expressed the opinion that the gentleman first referred to was "a good man," when I had just before publicly proved to the contrary. What I in-tended to observe was that he doubtless possessed "some good qualities." This may be said of the evil one himself. (See Epistle of James, chapter ii, verse 19). Nor could I unnecessarily, as I am reported, have spoken ill of the dead, especially of one who has been dead for more than ten years; and I protest that my repearly in that direction was protest that my remark in that direction was misunderstood. The interview lasted certainly not longer than five minutes, and was purely social. I had not the remotest idea hat any remark of mine would be reported. and I regret not having taken pains to make myself more accurately understood. In a word, the "report" is generally inaccurate, and I so notify you, not because the matter is worthy of any further notice, but as a sort of careat "to whom it may concern." Re-

OF ALL the preparations brought to public notice, none deserve greater commendation than Home stomach bitters. Being extracted from the best vegetable material, and containing no mineral poisons, they should be used by all who desire to retain or regain good health.

LOAN ASSOCIATION.

LOAN ASSOCIATION "YANNISSEE" TO THE FRONT.

The Pioneer Association of Memphis-Chartered October 1, 1871. Fifty Months' Dues Paid-Book Value Toward Maturity, $83.72 per Share. NEW SERIES. NO BACK DUES

"If a man says to his tenant that if he will pay him three or four dollars more per month than he has been in the habit of paying, at the expiration of eight or nine years he would give him a deed of the property, the tenant would be most likely to accept the offer. This is the principle upon which these Associations work."

In order to meet the demand of many applications, this Association has decided to issue Quarterly Series of Stock. Our subscription book for the Fourth Series, dating on the first day of July inst., is now open. The Series will be limited, and our friends are requested to hand in their subscriptions at once to the Secretary at the office of the Association, No. 291 Main street, up stairs, who will be in attendance during business hours to give all desired information as to the workings of the Association.

This Association is commended to the working-men of Memphis particularly. Its history, its success, its present prominent rank in the financial and business circles of the city, its good w.rk in the past, and its bright prospect for better work in the past, and its bright prospect for better work in the future, mark it as a prominent example of what the pluck, perseverance, stability and frugality of the workingmen of Memphis can achieve.

Our quarterly issuance of new stock opens up an opportunity io all classes to avail themselves of the benefits which attach to this Association by reason of experience, achieved success, and a low rate of working expenses.

L. Lagrilli, President.

Chas. T. Paterson, Secretary.

DRY GOODS REDUCTED

Great Reduction! Sweeping Reduction!

Staple and Fancy Dry Goods! B. Lowenstein & Bros.

Preparatory to receiving our Fall Stock (which will this season be one of unusual magnitude and variety), we are compelled to close out the residue of our Spring and Summer Goods. This can be done now, only, by placing them before the people at such low prices as will force the most uninterested to become purchasers. We have therefore gone through every department, and marked all lines of goods at such laures as will insure their speedy sale.
